

Fort McMurray Public Library

Mac Donald Island was the place to build the new Fort McMurray Public Library, at the very front of the prestigious new recreation complex. Spacious and grand, are just a few of the words used to describe the new facility. A modern building design, large plate windows, roomy interior and user friendly reading areas all combine to make this a very inviting library. The interior contains a combination of rich woods, beautiful yet durable fabrics, strong flexible wood/steel shelving, customized circulation desks and attention to other small details such as carpet tiles for easy replacement.

Special individualized areas were allotted for, adult reading, teens and pre teens. Modern libraries such as this prove you can have all the beauty, flexibility and durability, while still providing the latest in technology.
